This one-of-a-kind hand-painted wallcovering, was influenced by Natalia Miyar's Cuban roots with a contemporary Miami twist. Natalia worked closely with Fromental to create a design that evolved from a number of cultural influences, including one of her favourite paintings, 'La Jungla', by Cuban artist Wifredo Lam.

"The summery turquoise, blue and green shades in this artwork resonate with me as they embody the Caribbean palette of both Cuba and of Miami, my hometown."

Natalia Miyar

The painting informed the organic, abstract interpretation of geometric forms of the wall-covering and the rich colour palette. The design team was inspired by the lustre of semi-precious stones to further develop each vibrant shade. The result is a wallcovering that embodies the energising spirit of Caribbean warmth and style, the perfect backdrop for stylish entertaining.

Natalia asked Fromental to magnify the shapes, forms and jewel tones within the artwork to create a large-scale abstract pattern with a positive energy. A specialist cracked eggshell inlay was selected to create the effect of bright colour-blocking from afar, with beautiful textural detailing up-close.

“We played with the design in watercolour to get the correct balance of colour, Fromental created incredible textures for each element of the paper. The vivid palette of blues, greens, turquoise and terracotta brings a playful yet sophisticated note to a room which is intended for year-round entertaining; there is a strong sense of summer in this design”.
